- I used my research on capacitive non-corrosive soil moisture sensors from high school
- Project was stopped due to high production cost (20€/unit), team to pursue education, better engineering for agriculture use needed

- As a school project we made an educational guide mobile app that we got into our geography and history curriculum - we tried to give it a business model.
- As a stepping stone we made a B2B SaaS product for tourism companies and cities to enroll them in our platform and provide a customer facing guide / app for them
- Project stopped - we didn't find product-market fit, it's hard to breakthrough in tourism due to complicated financial incentives and government subsidized solutions.
